

“What’s Bankruptcy Got To Do With Love?”

Thursday, February 15th at 7:30 pm

Join author and Rockville Centre resident Janet Lombardi for book reading and discussion around her compelling new memoir, Bankruptcy: A Love Story.

“Set between the terrorist attacks on 9/11 and the collapse of the mortgage market seven years later, Bankruptcy: A Love Story tells the harrowing, true story of a marriage careening between devotion and desperation. Offering an intimate view of the corrosive effects of addiction and codependence, Lombardi’s memoir is more than the saga of a woman’s stunning descent into financial and emotional ruin. It’s a story of discovering that the one true love is love of yourself.”

- Desiree Cooper, author, *Know the Mother

Janet will be speaking about financial survival – how family finances get out of hand, discovery of the financial mess, the tough choices that have to be made to get out of debt, rebuilding her life, where she found help, the myth of “being taken care of” and lessons learned, and much more.

JANET LOMBARDI has written for salon.com, newsweek.com, Newsday, and others. She has been a featured guest on over a dozen national radio programs and appeared on Huffington Post live web. The mother of two grown sons, Janet lives in Rockville Centre, NY. Bankruptcy: A Love Story is her first book. www.janetlombardi.com
